GREENSPAN’S CELEBRATING 90 YEARS OF BUSINESS

Congratulations to Greenspan’s for celebrating their 90th Anniversary in business this year. On Sunday, September 16th, the business celebrated this milestone, by hosting a community Block Party. The event brought out supporters of the clothing store from all generations, and showcased various vintage cars.

In honor of Greenspan’s 90th Anniversary, the Pendleton Woolen Mills company produced an exclusive wool shirt, only available at their location. Greenspan’s actually selected the design and colors of the wool shirt.

Greenspan’s is a four-generation family owned clothing store in the City of South Gate. The store was founded by Alex and Eva Greenspan in the community of Watts, in the City of Los Angeles in 1928; and in 1939, Alex and Eva established a second store in the City of South Gate at 3405 Tweedy Boulevard which was operated by their son Edward. The Greenspan’s store in Watts closed for business in 1944, but the Greenspan’s in South Gate remains open. In the 1950’s, Edward designed coats, shirts, suits, pants and hats replicating from the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s, and contracted with local factories to manufacture the items with his name brand “Greenspan’s Brand.”

In the 1970’s, Greenspan’s purchased volumes of cotton and wool clothing from the 1930’s, 1940’s, 1950’s and 1960’s and sold it to Hollywood movie producers; boutiques on Melrose Avenue; in Los Angeles and San Francisco; and stores in Europe and Japan.

In the 1990’s, Greenspan’s sold many specialized vintage clothing to hip hop artists and created what is known in the fashion world as “West Coast Hip Hop” style clothing. Greenspan’s continues to sell clothes and items to many celebrities and artists such as Ice Cube, Lady Gaga, Jesse James, as well as other film and television producers.

For 90 years, Greenspan’s has remained family owned and is currently operated by Evan, his son Josh and daughter Shiria.
